Veterinary & Research Conservation Missions

Wilde Jungle

COSTA RICA

Be a vital part of the final stages of wildlife rehabilitation - release and monitoring to see the success of your efforts

COSTA RICA

WildeJungle

Immerse yourself in hands-on conservation at our wildlife release site, Bosque Escondido, located in the heart of Costa Rica's tropical forest. This unique program invites you to live and work alongside wildlife specialists for a minimum of two weeks, contributing directly to the protection and rehabilitation of some of the country's most vulnerable species. Your days will be filled with meaningful fieldwork — from collecting behavioral data and monitoring rehabilitated animals to supporting the release of critically endangered species back into their natural habitat. After release, you'll help track and observe their progress, ensuring they adapt successfully to life in the wild.

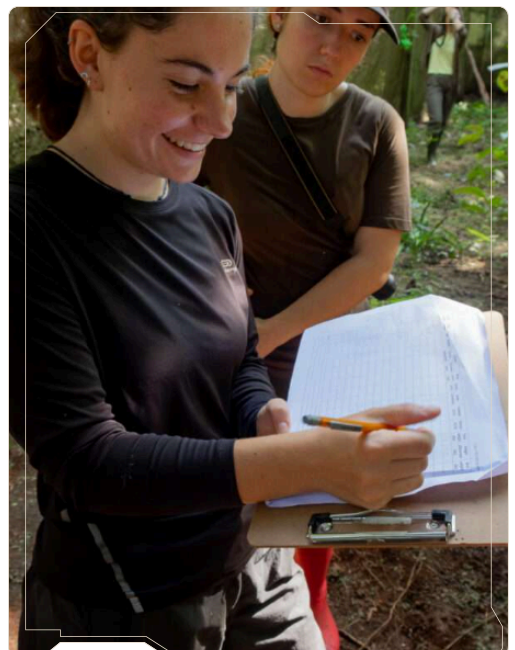

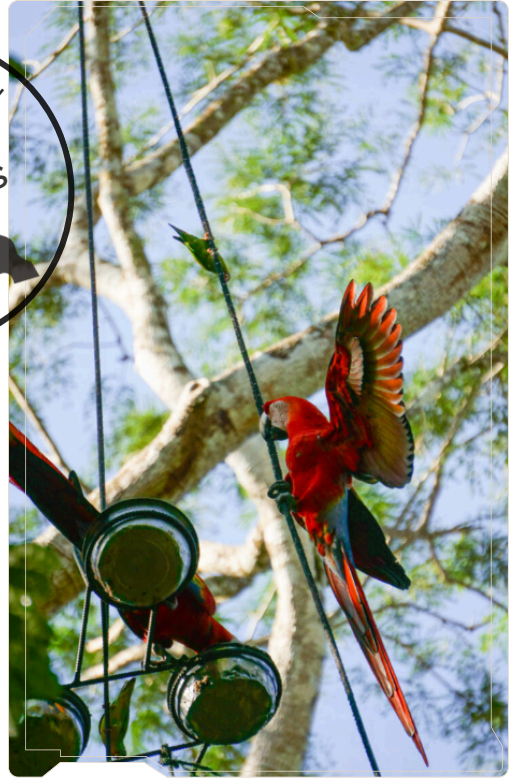

In addition, you'll take part in designing environmental enrichment activities and gathering natural foods for animals preparing for release, helping them develop the survival skills they'll need to thrive independently. Life at Bosque Escondido offers an authentic and immersive conservation experience. You'll live surrounded by rainforest, waking to the calls of the wildlife you're helping to protect, and gaining firsthand insight into the challenges and triumphs of real-world conservation in action.

When: Minimum 2 week program
Available year round
Beginning alternate Wednesdays

Where: Bosque Escondido, Costa Rica

Supporting Conservation

At Wilde Tracks, we believe everyone has the power to make a meaningful impact in conservation.

When you join one of our missions, you're not just going on an adventure — you're becoming part of a real, boots-on-the-ground conservation effort. Your conservation contribution directly funds:

- Life-saving veterinary care
- Medical supplies, collars, tags, and satellite tracking
- Helicopter time, fuel, and essential field logistics
- Animal feed, rescue, rehabilitation, and release operations
- Ongoing scientific research and data collection
- Habitat restoration and anti-poaching efforts

Each program is led by seasoned professionals — from wildlife veterinarians, ecologists, and biologists to forensic experts, legal professionals, forensic entomologists, and survival/tracking specialists — ensuring your experience is meaningful, educational, and impactful.

By joining a Wildlife Tracks mission, you're helping protect endangered species, restore ecosystems, and drive sustainable, long-term conservation.

Thank you for being part of something that truly matters.
